St. Susanna

One of the biggest questions in life, that determines how good of a person you are, is how you affect the people around you. The way that I think that I have affected the people around is what I am going to discuss in this scholarship essay. The way that I affect people is very important to me. Most people just say that they affect people in a positive way because they want to make a good impression on someone, but when I am talking to someone I think of exactly what I am going to say and then I use that speech to affect the person in the most positive way that is possible.

An example of when I affected some people in a positive way is when I came to Ohio and I started going to St. Susanna School. I came to St. Susanna after my father passed away. You would think that I would always be upset and in a bad mood, but I always wake up in a great mood and I'm always so excited to go to school. I proved that a kid can lose someone that they truly and dearly care about and still have so much joy in them. That is a way I have positively affected some people.

In conclusion I think I have positively affected a lot of other people that I did not mention. Every morning when I get up I think of how I want to be nicer to people throughout the day and then the next when I wake up I think of how I can be even nicer than before. So to conclude this essay I think that the way that I affect the people around me is very important to me.
